N REVIEWS Introduction to the Science of Chinese Religion : a Critique of Max. Müller and, other authors By Rov. ERNST FABER Hounkong and Shanghai : Kelly and Walsh.

Lying hofers us, we have an imperial cotavo stitched volume of some one hundred and sixty Inpanese Plays (versified). By THOMAS R.-H. pages bearing the above superscription. The McCharchin. Yokohama Japan Harald litle is unsatisfactory, inasmuch as it the not give any fair idea of the contents. The Chivose Religion, as an introduction to which it professes to have been written, is not referred to except at wide intervals; and what little is said, is naither instructive nor above fifty lines in extentaltogether. Another objection is the term Science applied to Religion. We do not quite impugn he correctness of thus using it nor do we wish to say it originated with the reverend goutleman who has caused the publication of this volume. but there sooms a barronness and harshness and familiarity, in ita application to religion, that scarcely cares to hear of that which was impressed on his mind in the earliest-days of his infancy as something immeasureably above any such laws as are involved in the term Science, spoken of in just such a manner as are mechanism.

medicine, and so forth. Another objection that might be urged against it is that instead of hoiner issued as a prolude it should have taken the form of a supplement. Even Mr. Faber admits that there may be justifleation for this view, for he says at page 4 of his preface, "In some respects, it would have been better to defer publication till my work on Chinese Roligion is completed." Having read through all that had been put forward in this publication, we were at a loss to understand the precise objects in view, until we reflected that certain problems connected with Religious at large and Chinase (se-called) Religion in particular were to be illustrated in a work as yet little more than projected in the mind of its intended writer. To one who has made the subject application of the propositions and arguments published in Mr. Faber's work, may be simple from remote ages, and which have, moreover, enough, but it is not every one who is placed in such an enviable position. Let us have the illustrations first, and then build on them whatever theories may justly be advanced. Such a

THE CANTON CUSTOMS.

The N. C. Daily Nove translates from the Peking Gazette of Dec. 8th, the following :-Memorial from Chun Ch'i, Superintendent of Customs at Canton, forwarding a return of duties collected by the autive Custom Houses under his charge for the year ended 15th of February. 79, as wall as the amount of duty on foreign opium collected at Cap Sing Moon (Chi Shui Men) and other stations, with returns of ordinary duties collected at the part of Pak hoi in the prefecture of Lien-chow. In former days it used to be the rule to forward a general annual return of all duties, foreign and other, collected by the Control Custem House at Canton and its dependencies, a separate return of expenditure being afterwards submitted to His Majesty. In Degember, 1864, instructions were received from the Board of Revenue to the effect that His Majesty's sanction had been obtained to an arrangement by which counting from the month of October 1860 returns of the amount of native and foreign duties collected and expended should be. sent in every three months, a general return being submitted to His Majesty at the close of four such periods, a return of the quarterly receipts and lishursements being forwarded in quadruplicate to the Board of Revenue instead of the returns for each successive period of office as was heretofore the rule. Returns, however, of regular duties were still to be forwarded at the close of each period of office. Again, in the month of June, 1867, the Board, in obedience to instructions received, fixed the regular assessment for the Canton Custom House at Tls. 56,511, and the surplus assessment of Tis. 100,000. They further recommended that the regular duty on opium collected at Cap Sing Moon and other stations in the districts of Hain an and Heinngshan, with that on goods collected at the Pak-hoi station, should be accounted for in the returns presented at the expiration of the term of office of each respective incumbent. General Returns of ordinary duty for the years 1878 have already been presented, and the memorialist begs now to report that during the year ended 15th of Fabruary 1879, there were collected at the Canton Customs At the Swatow Customs ....

THE PRECIOUS METALS.

The annual report of the Hon. Horatio C. Bui chard director of the Mint at Washington, showing the operations of the United States Mints and Assay offices during the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1879, states that the coinage in the year amounted to $68,312,692, and consisted of 2,759,421 pieces of gold, of the value of $40,986,912 and 27,228,850 pieces of silver. - The production of the precious metals in the United States was much less than that of the preceding year. has resulted from the diminished yield of mines of the Comstock Lode. Although the production of Nevada will be large and continuous for many years, it does not appear probable that the mines of that State will make such onormous contributions to the mineral wealth of the country as they have in previous years. This decrease has been in part compensated by the results of the more thorough exploration of the mining regions of the Rocky Mountains, especially in Central and Southern Colorado. The production of that State was at least $5,000,000 greater in the last than in the preceding year, and will probably furnish an undiminished, it not increasing, amount of eiler in the future extensive plain where you see no vestige of life After careful inquiry and consideration of the viold of different localities and mines in United States, the Director estimates the total production of the precious metals in the country for the fiscal year 1878.79 at $79,712,000, of which $38,900,000 was gold and $40,813,000 silver. > A SULUS ACCOUNT OF THE DEATH OF THE PRINCE IMPERIAL.

He says:—"I accompanied two Transvanl Rangers, with Lieutenant Grevile, of major of the corps, who speaks Zulu perfectly. being assured he would not be punished, told us. hill; but see no more soldiers coming, they crept up to the vicinity of the kraal and watched. There were nine Zulas in all, but one went away to the neighbouring kroal to fetch more men. The soldiers walked about the kraal and looked into the huts carelessly, no watch whatever being kept. One soldier lit his pipe at the remains of a fire. Before more Zulus arrived, seeing the soldiers preparing to go, the eight Zulus fired into them. Two fell, and the great chief was hart, because he did not get on his horse. All the other soldiers rode away very fast, and crossedthe dongs. Thus had he grown to manhood's prime; And then he mot, one fair Spring time, When enowdrops grew a hundred deep, And violets just began to peep, As sweet a little maid as you, Or I, or any one o'er know. (Qh, if I could but paint instead!) Her lips were roses cherry red; • Hor postless brow was lily white; Her eyelids were the edge of night; Her eyes were moodlight, and their beam Killed you with love s enchanted dream. He did not fall in love like men, Who first fall in, then out again; He grew to love her day by day-Daily she stole some heart away And when he'd lost quite half his heart He offered her the other part. He said, "I thought, some time ago, My strength could match with any foe, But thou hast conglit me in a not From which I cannot free me yet." (Indeed, it seemed he did prefer Being caught, for he went nearer her:

" Nay, hear me, ere thou speak again, A silken cord shall join us twain; Around my life one end shall be, The other shall be hold by thee, Here, at thy feet I vanquished lie, Fair Una thou, though Lion I." And somehow-how, they never know-Four lips were in the place of two. ...
